G Bar G Veterinary Service

Riverton, Wyoming

Biography: Glen Gamble DVM has been a veterinarian in Riverton, Wyoming since 1997. He chose to go to vet school in Corvallis, Oregon because Oregon State University is a superior school, and he wanted to experience a different part of the United States. There, he received his Doctorate in Veterinary Medicine in 1995 and also met his future spouse.

Glen and his wife, Gunda own G Bar G Veterinary Services where they diagnose and treat large and small animals. Glen is particularly interested in surgeries, even intimidating ones that involve a lot of blood and guts.

Glen is an avid outdoorsman. No weather is too ugly and no distance is too far for him to travel if he can go fishing or hunting. His life's motto is to work hard, study hard and play hard.

Workshop: Foot Loose – Ever wondered how a horse is able to pound across rough terrain at top speeds to escape predators? In this workshop, you will have the opportunity to dissect the leg of a horse. You will be able to see how muscles at the top of the leg taper down into tendons and attach to the foot. How is the hoof built? What do the joints look like? Caution: this workshop is not for the faint-hearted.
