

Randy Tucker
Staff Writer/Retired Teacher
Riverton Ranger Newspaper
Riverton, Wyoming

Biography: Randy Tucker is a 48-year resident of Wyoming. He holds a BA in History Education from UW and an MS in Computer Science from George Washington University. He is sometimes described as a modern day Renaissance man in deference to his many interests that range from agriculture, construction, auto restoration, hunting and fishing to technology with a blend of history and sports mixed in. Tucker taught history, computer science, math and journalism at the middle school through university graduate level for 39 years. He is a widely published author with over 15,000 articles appearing in a variety of newspapers, magazines and online venues. He and his wife Susan have a small farm near Riverton. They have two married adult children and the two most talented granddaughters you can find anywhere.

Workshop: Can You Drive a Stick? Technology changes at an exponentially accelerating pace. We can't hope to keep up with all of it, but many tried and true technologies transcend the rush for the new and constantly improved. Technology reaches far beyond personal digital devices and is a hidden and not-so-hidden aspect of our everyday lives. Recognizing, mastering and using the beneficial aspects of technology are a constant challenge in the modern era.
