

Joshua Rowe
Meteorologist
National Weather Service Riverton
Riverton, Wyoming

Biography: Joshua is a meteorologist at the National Weather Service Office in Riverton, Wyoming. He has been working as a meteorologist since 2018, first in the private sector forecasting for locations in the Middle East and has been working at the National Weather Service Office in Riverton, Wyoming since September 2021. He graduated from Valparaiso University in Valparaiso, Indiana in 2016 with a Bachelor's degree in Atmospheric Science. Growing up He became fascinated with weather from tornados to winter storms and flash floods. Currently, he serves as the Social Media Team Leader and School Partner Coordinator at the National Weather Service Office in Riverton, Wyoming.

Workshop: Battle of the Air Masses Trivia - Test your knowledge of all things weather as you compete together in teams to see who knows the most about weather. Also, check out a weather balloon and radiosonde, which are used to take measurements of the atmosphere for today's weather models. Ever seen lightning in action? You'll be able to with the lightning ball. Other cool activities will be available as well.